Disability group inducts Williams into hall of fame

Boyce R. Williams, the 1983-84 recipient of Gallaudet's Powrie Vaux Doctor Chair of Deaf Students, was inducted Oct. 26 into the National Hall of Fame for Persons with Disabilities, Inc., in that organization's third annual ceremony in Columbus, Ohio.

Dr. Williams, deafened by spinal meningitis at the age of 17, graduated from Gallaudet in 1932 and received a master's degree from Columbia University in 1940. Between degrees, Dr. Williams taught at the Wisconsin and Indiana Schools for the Deaf, serving as vocational training director at the latter.

In 1945 he began a distinguished 38-year career with the federal government, retiring in 1983. He served as consultant for 22 years, moving on to become chief and then director of what is now the Office of Deafness and Communicative Disorders, Rehabilitation Services Administration, U.S. Department of Education.

Dr. Williams was awarded a doctor of laws degree from Gallaudet in 1958 and a doctor of humanities degree from Carthage College, Kenosha, Wis., in 1972. Among the many awards he has received are the Award of Merit from the International Congress on Education of the Deaf, the National Association of the Deaf Distinguished Service Award and the Daniel T. Cloud Memorial Award for Leadership from San Fernando Valley State College.

In the fall of 1983, Dr. Williams returned to Kendall Green as the recipient of the Powrie V. Doctor Chair and

School entrusts historical records to Gallaudet

"It's all here," said David de Lorenzo, "the 165-year history of one of the most important schools for deaf students in the United States."

De Lorenzo, the College's archivist and special collections librarian, describes the donation of the historical records of the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf as "not only a major contribution to Gallaudet's archives, but a demonstration of trust in Gallaudet's charge of promoting and preserving the deaf community's cultural heritage."

From its founding in 1820 until 1935, the school was known as the Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf and Dumb. It was the third such institution established in the U.S.

When the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf closed its high school in 1983, de Lorenzo wrote to PSD Superintendent Joseph Finnegan, asking for the opportunity to visit the school and study its records. "At the time, the school hoped to establish its own archives," said de Lorenzo, "but funding eventually became a problem."

After what de Lorenzo describes as "an emotional decision" for the PSD board of trustees, faculty and staff, the school notified de Lorenzo last September that it wanted to donate its records to Gallaudet.

Among the records were such items as students' applications, annual reports, faculty and staff salary lists, minutes of board meetings and all official correspondence. Also recorded are expenditures for items that included aprons, lantern slide plates and beef.

and correspondence are also in the collection. Three reels of film showing "Miss Corbett in Wisso" and "Boy Scouts" are dated 1937, and various still photographs depict people and scenes from as early as 1890.

"The documents are very well preserved," said de Lorenzo, noting that paper used at that time was made from cotton rag rather than from less durable wood pulp of later years. Most of the records were handwritten using quill pens and iron gall ink.

Special chemicals will be used to remove dirt and acids that have accumulated on the pages. "Most of the work can be done by our staff," said de Lorenzo. "Items requiring more specialized processes will be sent to freelance conservators."

Temperature and humidity controlled vaults are provided in the archives, and the documents will be stored in acid-free folders and boxes.

After the items are sorted and catalogued, de Lorenzo said, the collection will be open to the public. An exhibition of selected documents is planned at completion of the cataloguing.

Book on cognition & deafness called 'veritable treasure'

Fifteen College and five PreCollege faculty and staff are among the contributors to "Cognition, Education and Deafness" published by Gallaudet College Press.

The 248-page hardcover book, subtitled "Directions for Research and Instruction," contains a summary, analysis and synthesis of papers presented at the International Symposium on Cognition, Education and Deafness held on Kendall Green in June 1984.

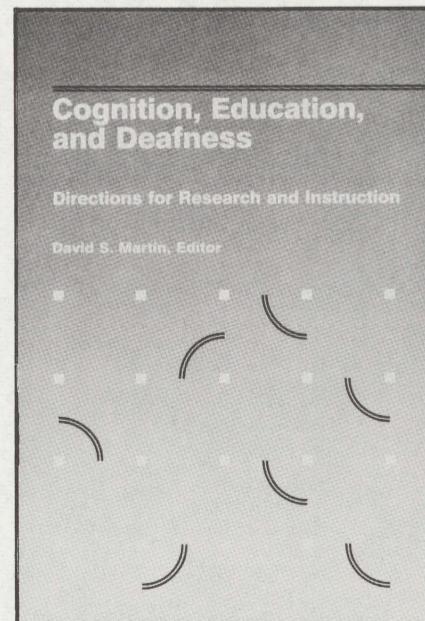

David S. Martin, dean of the School of Education and Human Services, is the editor of the book as well as contributor and author of the book's introduction. Doin Hicks, vice president for Institutional Research and Planning, wrote the book's foreword.

According to Dr. Hicks, "Cognition, Education and Deafness" provides "the best summary to date of state-of-the-art information on topics related to cognition and deafness. The volume comes highly recommended as a veritable treasure to the serious student and to the practicing professional concerned about helping deaf persons help themselves by developing a greater portion of their cognitive potential."

Contributions from 54 experts are organized into seven topic areas focusing on cognition and its relation to students' growth and development, problem-solving strategies, thinking processes, language development, reading methodology, measurement of potential and intervention programs.

Both Dr. Martin and Dr. Hicks acknowledge the role of Clarence Williams, former director of Faculty and Student Research, who died before seeing the fruits of his labor on the international symposium. "His professional inspiration and energy were essential to the original conceptualization and initial planning for the symposium from which this book grew," wrote Dr. Martin. "He is much missed by all who knew him."

Gallaudet College Press's newest book is available now at the College Bookstore.

Announcements

The Gallaudet Interpreting Service is seeking to expand its pool of freelance interpreters to meet increased demand for interpreting services. There is a need for interpreters at all levels of certification and especially for individuals who can interpret one or more classes for an entire semester. If you know interpreters who might be interested in working for GIS, please have them contact Bill Isham, x5634, to arrange for an intake evaluation.

November is "Drug and Alcohol Awareness Month" at MSSD. There will be a panel of former drug users and a skit in the Recreation Center at 7 p.m. on Nov. 12. Drinking and driving will be the focus of a discussion led by D.C. police in the Student Development Center at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 14. "Quit Smoking Week" will be Nov. 18-22, with special 7 p.m. programs Monday through Thursday leading up to "cold turkey day" on Friday.

"WomanTalk," a new play written and directed by Bruce Hlibok and starring Ellen Roth and Linda Herenchak, will be presented at 2:30 and 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 23 at the Publick Playhouse on Landover Rd. in Hyattsville, Md. Larry Berke is the play's producer. For more information call 277-1711 (V/TDD).

One of the ways that staff and faculty can support the Alumni House Endowment Fund is by purchasing holiday, birthday and anniversary gifts in "Ole Jim." Dozens of items are available including books and Gallaudet-related jewelry and memorabilia.

Bruce White of the English Department has a full supply of 1985 UNICEF holiday greeting cards for inspection and sale in HMB 206. All proceeds from sales go to the U.S. Committee for UNICEF.

Secretaries interested in taking the Certified Professional Secretary (CPS) examination next May are invited to discover their strong and weak points by taking a CPS Prep Test Saturday, Nov. 23 at Prince George's Community College in Largo, Md. The test will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and costs $6. Interested secretaries should contact Joyce McPherson, x5150 (V/TDD), for more information and application forms. Secretaries planning to take the full two-day examination in May must submit applications by Dec. 1.

The D.C. chapter of the alumni association will celebrate its 80th anniversary with a banquet in "Ole Jim" Saturday, Dec. 7. A cocktail hour will precede the 7 p.m. buffet dinner. The cost for the banquet is $15 per person, and reservations are required. Contact Mike Kaika in "Ole Jim," x5105 (TDD). The next meeting of the D.C. chapter, scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Dec. 11 in "Ole Jim," will include the annual fundraising party to benefit needy families of KDES students.

A "Deaf Services Fair" will be held in Ely Center this Thursday, Nov. 14, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sponsored by the Student Union and the Office of Student Development units of Student Affairs, the event is one of several planned as part of "Panorama of Deafness Month." Various Washington-area organizations such as Deafpride, the National Association of the Deaf, Telecommunications for the Deaf and Otis House will be represented. The Gallaudet community is invited. For more information call Dave Staehle, x5182 (V/TDD).

The Jewish Social Service Agency of Metropolitan Washington offers specialized services for hearing impaired persons and other programs for disabled individuals and their families. The agency is located at 6123 Montrose Rd. in Rockville, Md. For more information call 881-3700 (V) or 984-5662 (TDD).

The Office of Intramurals is looking for someone to give private and semi-private swimming lessons to faculty and staff. If you are interested and WSI certified, please contact Gina Oliva, x5362.

Mattie Shell sits with husband Joe Shell, a groundskeeper at the College, on the bench presented to her at the Nov. 1 reception in honor of her retirement.

After 39 years working at Gallaudet Mattie says, 'I'm going to miss it'

When Mattie Shell first started working at Gallaudet College in 1946, she was 19 years old. There were only about four or five buildings on campus then.

"I was not intending to stay," she said recently. "You know, when you're only 19, you don't have anything in mind." She was raised in the neighborhood, and she heard about the job from a friend who was working here. It was a job, that's all.

But she stayed, for 39 years. "I fell in love with the students," she said simply.

She began work in the cafeteria that used to be in Chapel Hall. In 1948 she switched to housekeeping, which later became custodial services.

In 1972 she was made a work leader, and two years later she was promoted to supervisor. She remained in that position until June when she left on sick leave. And now she's retiring.

"I'm going to miss it," she said just prior to a reception in her honor on Nov. 1. "I grew to love the students, especially when I was in Fowler Hall [when it was a residence for female students]. Back then, it was a small campus. We were like a family."

Her work took her all over the campus, however. Ernest Spriggs, director of the Physical Plant Department said, "Many of us know and love Mattie for her kindness and warm smile. Her excellent work record, cooperation and willingness to help made her an asset to the Gallaudet community."

OTG: How you can help your paper

The On the Green staff believes that a good faculty and staff newspaper can be made better through input, cooperation and feedback from readers. To improve the paper, and therefore improve campus communication, the following information and guidelines are offered regarding your newspaper.

Story ideas: Please contact editor Jim Stentzel or writers Nancy Moore or Mary Johnstone, Chapel Hall or x5100, regarding ideas for news and feature stories. If you can offer assistance in providing background information or arranging for photos, please discuss this with the editor. Each department or unit is encouraged to designate a person responsible for getting news and ideas to On the Green.

Articles: All articles should be typed (double spaced). Please also provide the name and telephone extension of the author or a person to contact for more information.

Copy deadline: Friday, 10 days before date of publication on Monday. When announcing upcoming events planned for a Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday, please provide the information in time for the previous week's paper.

Schedule: On the Green is published 46 times a year, every Monday except Dec. 2, 23 and 30, 1985 and March 24, May 26 and July 7, 1986.

Circulation: More than 2,200 copies of OTG are distributed on campus each week, providing maximum exposure to the community and therefore minimizing the need for campus-wide memos and newsletters.

Publisher: OTG is published by the Office of Alumni Relations and Advancement (AR/A). Please note that AR/A and the Office of Public Relations are no longer in the same unit.

Content: Ideas and opinions expressed in OTG do not necessarily reflect those of Gallaudet College, its administration or its Board of Trustees. The editors reserve the right to select, edit, shorten, provide bylines for, lay out and/or hold for later publication any contribution, solicited or unsolicited.

Personalities: This periodic column is devoted primarily to introducing new faculty and staff to the community. If you or anyone in your office is yet to be introduced, please contact OTG.

Serendipity: This column is written by library staff. Please direct your suggestions and comments to Burnelle Ray, MLC or x5577.

Thank you for your continued support and cooperation.

Pennsylvania school donates key records

De Lorenzo said that he hopes to get a grant to help with the arrangement and description work on the collection, which will take approximately two years to complete.

"Adequate funding would encourage more officials of schools and organizations of deaf people to entrust valuable memorabilia to Gallaudet," said de Lorenzo. "Concerned people need to know that their documents are given the necessary care to ensure preservation."

The College community will be particularly interested in a PSD record dated Oct. 12, 1826. The entry states that John Carlin, for whom Gallaudet's newest dorm is named, was enrolled at the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf as a "day scholar at $40 per annum."

Gally people star in PBS program

Gallaudet faculty, staff and students are featured in a segment of the Emmy Award-winning television series "Innovation" that focuses on high tech for hearing impaired people.

The program, "Crossing the Silence Barrier," premiered last Tuesday in the New York City metropolitan area on WNET-TV, which produces the series with major funding from Johnson & Johnson. The program may be aired on Channel 26 in D.C. or Channel 22 in Maryland. Please check your TV listings.

This particular program in the "Innovation" series will be closed-captioned, and Gallaudet is obtaining a videotape to air on the campus closed-circuit TV system.

"Crossing the Silence Barrier" explores the latest technology in hearing aids, TDDs, classrooms with loops, cochlear implants, computer-controlled laser beams that permit persons to "see" around pitches and frequencies, and "telesign," which permits the use of sign language over the telephone.

Gallaudet students featured on the program include Meme Kerr and Allan Miller. Among faculty and staff who participated in the Sept. 26 videotaping are Trent Batson, Tim Bunnell, Judy Harkins, Diane Hottendorf, Mary Johnstone, Rex Lowman, Howard Schlieper and Marshall Wick.

You'll win a good bet: How to say Gallaudet

The French may have pronounced it "Gal-a-day" because of their pesky habit of dropping 't's at the end of words. Southern folk (and others) sometimes say "Gal-yuh-det" or "Gal-you-det," but they are sadly mistaken.

The proper way to say Gallaudet, according to sources in very high places, is "Gal-a-det."

The "gal" part is as in "Buffalo gal, won't you come out tonight?" NOT as in "My gall bladder is killing me." The "a" is short and "det" rhymes with bet, wet, fret and set, NOT with beret. Tsk, those French.

Who are these high-placed sources who know so much? Don't ask. They'd probably correct your pronunciation.

Wondering why you're seeing shiny new pipes on campus? See below for an explanation.

Construction to close campus road

Beginning about Nov. 18 the road between "Ole Jim" and the Washburn Arts Building will be closed to traffic in order to lay pipes that will extend the chilled water and steam system to Faculty Row.

A temporary road will be opened between the Gallaudet College Press warehouse (near the tennis courts) and the West Office Building.

Another extension of the system, to Fowler Hall and Dawes House, will not involve digging up roadways. Both extensions of the system are scheduled for completion in mid-February, depending on the weather.

In a summary of Dr. Williams' achievements for the induction ceremony, the National Hall of Fame for Persons with Disabilities said, "It has been largely due to Dr. Williams' work that training programs for vocational counselors serving communicatively disordered persons were established; that comprehensive vocational rehabilitation centers were set up to serve this population; that national attention was focused on the mental health service needs of deaf people; that interpreting became an authorized vocational rehabilitation case service to deaf clients; that legislation to aid severely disabled deaf adults has been proposed; and that research to study the myriad problems that cluster around hearing and speech impairment has been mounted."

Among Ourselves

On behalf of President Jerry C. Lee, Joan Lee attended a Cosmopolitan Club of Washington dinner at the Kenwood Country Club Nov. 7 honoring four College seniors. The club awarded scholarships to Duncan Payne, Tanya Schreiber, Douglas Valloric and Belinda McCleese, each of whom is heading toward graduation with distinguished grade point averages. The club has awarded scholarships to Gallaudet students since 1978 in each of four areas of study: science and mathematics, humanities, social studies and professional studies/academic.

Four Gallaudet people participated in "A Kaleidoscope of Deafness" conference held at LaGuardia Community College in New York City Oct. 24-25. Tom Mayes delivered the keynote address; Michael Karchmer discussed deafness research; Yerker Andersson offered a sociocultural perspective on deafness around the world; and Katherine Seelman spoke on technology and deafness.

Weekly Highlight

The Office of Sponsored Programs (OSP) reports that the College has received a grant of $54,392 from the U.S. Department of Education, Rehabilitation Services Administration, for the first of a three-year project entitled, "Rehabilitation Counseling for the Deaf."

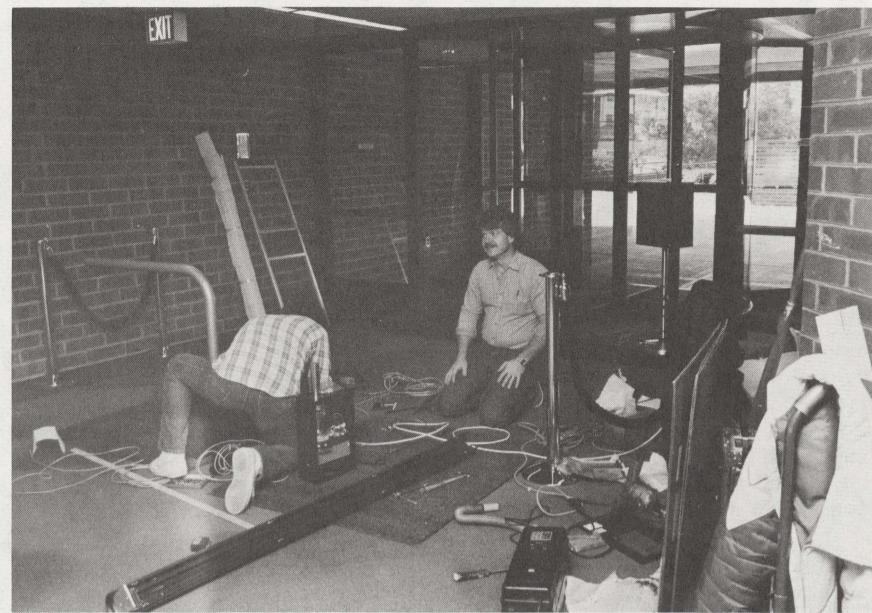

The project director is Dr. Marita Danek, Department of Counseling. The objectives of the program include maintaining and increasing the supply of professionally trained and qualified rehabilitation counselors for the deaf; modifying and expanding current roles and responsibilities of counselors; improving the quality of public and private rehabilitation services; and expanding the accessibility of existing general programs and facilities.

For further information, call Dr. Danek, x5586.

Provided below are application deadlines of selected federal programs that offer potential grant or contract opportunities for faculty, staff and graduate students. More details on these and other programs of interest can be obtained from the Office of Sponsored Programs, x5034 (V/TDD).

You and Your Job

Automobile Insurance

Does the cost of your auto insurance seem high? Why not investigate the College-sponsored automobile insurance coverage? Currently 76 employees are insuring 120 vehicles through this plan.

Provident General, the College's carrier, has made available low-cost group insurance for autos and most other vehicles, and the premiums can be paid through biweekly payroll deductions. Not only are the rates more competitive because of the group plan, but Provident also offers a safe driver rating, multiple car discounts, driver education discounts for teenagers, good student driver discounts and car pool discounts.

The plan provides collision, comprehensive and liability coverage as well as medical payments, uninsured motorists coverage and towing services.

To receive a rate quotation, you complete a request for quotation form. The forms are available in the Personnel Office. You decide the extent of coverage you want, the Provident General will provide a quotation.

If you elect insurance with Provident General, your coverage can become effective by: (a) returning a signed copy of the application, in which case your insurance will become effective when received at the Provident office; or (b) if immediate coverage is desired, you may call Provident directly.

If you leave Gallaudet or retire, you can take the policy with you at the same favorable rate.

The telephone numbers for Provident General are: from D.C. or Virginia—800-638-2562 (V/TDD); from Maryland—800-492-1349 (V/TDD).
